

ABSTRACT

A managing computer manages applications residing on a managed computer. An agent is forwarded from the managing computer to the managed computer. The agent runs on the managed computer. The agent
5 maintains specified applications residing on the managed computer. The agent also performs requests made by the managing computer.